

Allan Watts, Vice-President - Allan brings a combination of business, marketing and advocacy to the HPC Board. He views life as having presented him with many opportunities for learning and growing and is thankful to be enjoying a relatively new and very rewarding one. After a successful career in business, first in sales and marketing, then as an entrepreneur in retail, he has made a recent change into health care.

“My business experience taught me to trust my instincts and that hard work, attention to detail and building relationships were keys to success. My recent work in respite care and personal support have allowed me to appreciate the value of care and the importance of good care”.
